Ghostbuster, Becoming a

You know the backpacks they wear? I have actually downloaded plans to build one of those, a replica prop, and I have wanted to build one of those forever. What you do is - it looks like this and then you have got this thing right here and then over here. Then you have got your four here and over here and then you have got your big thing in the middle. This is what the back looks like. Basically, what it is was a bunch of plywood and stuff they just found and threw together and put it on this pack frame and put it on your back. Basically, it is just for looks but there are electronics you can buy for it that will make noises and light up. But if you are a true fan it is just the joy of having one and running around pretending you are catching ghosts. It is fun. I mean I think it would be fun to build because it is challenging and has a lot of advanced - you would have to know what you are doing. You would have to be fluent with shop. You can either make the pieces or you can buy them. You can buy resin pieces and stuff.
